The technology that mimics the hearing conduction system.

Human kind is one of the superior living and has needs other than sound because of the lifestyle and intellectual structure. If the technology becomes available to the human kind, it has to perceive the structure and other human needs. Expectations from hearing aids are not limited to only providing sound and it also requires a system that doesn't harm any organs.

Helix Life does not affect or suppress the life style of hearing impaired people while providing the sound and tones needed. It offers a performance above the expected levels of technology.

Smart technology is always ahead

Only the smart technology can provide solutions in the volatile acoustic environment. High capacity technology with the most superior hardware and software can cover need of hearing.

Helix Life has an outstanding ability of recognizing different type of environments and adapting the needs of hearing impaired people.

We might not be able to change the environment, but we can protect ourselves from the harmful effects of the environment.

Helix provides an amusing sound by positioning itself to the environmental conditions.
